Colloff Cousins, Vol III Number 4.

Threnody

Since my son was killed Last September I have not had any inclination to handle other family history matters.

We have yet to get any sort of closure over his death because the driver of Aldi's articulated lorry was only charged on June 30th. with causing his death by dangerous driving, and given bail. This allows his case to move on from the Coroner's Court to a Crown Court hearing in September to hear the driver's plea, and then await a date in the Crown Court calendar for the subsequent trial, in goodness knows how many more months' time, .

This meant that I have not written anything for the Colloff Cousins;
Volume III Number 4, Summer 2007 that was due last month.

This note is in place of that issue which will not now be produced.

I hope and expect to be producing the next issue; Volume III Number 5, Winter 2007, ready for Christmas 2007.

For those of you suffering from Colloff Cousins withdrawal symptoms I recommend that you look on the World Wide Web at Lynn James' excellent web pages about 'The Colloffs'.

The URL (World Wide Web electronic address) for Lyn's web pages is;

<http://www.thecolloffs.com>

and I would remind all British residents that they can go to their local library where they should be able to arrange to freely view those pages, and, with Lynn's permission, have any of her pages there that you would like to keep, printed out for your personal reference.
